Fund for Engineering Receives $500,000 Gift from Mrs. Buckman

Mrs. Clarice L. Buckman of New Haven has made a $500,000 gift to the university's School of Engineering. It is one of the largest gifts ever received by the university.

The major leadership gift to the UNH $2-million Fund for Engineering is in memory of Mrs. Buckman's late husband, Jacob Finley Buckman, a pioneer in the technology of electroplating and a co-founder of Enthone Corporation. Buckman, who died in 1973, is remembered also as a New Haven area civic leader and philanthropist.

Enthone, located in West Haven, is now a subsidiary of ASARCO, the world's largest processor of non-ferrous ores.

Mrs. Buckman is one of UNH's most generous benefactors. She established the university's first endowed chair, the Jacob Finley Buckman Professorship in Chemistry and Chemical Engineering in 1981 and in 1986 provided funds to establish Buckman Awards for Academic Excellence in Engineering. The Buckman annual cash awards are presented to graduating engineering students who have maintained continued academic excellence in engineering. The first four were awarded following the January 1987 commencement exercises.

Fund for Engineering Leadership Announced

Francis A. Schneiders, president of Enthone, Inc., has been named chairman of the UNH Fund for Engineering.

Schneiders, who took one of his engineering degrees from the university in 1954, will head up the $2-million capital campaign to provide additions and improvements to instructional laboratories, a new Computer-Aided Engineering Center, more computer capabilities throughout the curriculum and a Dean's Endowment for merit and minority scholarships. A kick-off dinner will be held early this fall.

Serving with Schneiders are: Robert F. Wilson, retired chairman of Wallace Silversmiths, Inc., vice chairman; Alexander W. Nicholson, Jr., BS '65, EMBA '78, president of A&N Development Corporation, alumni chairman; Leon J. Talalay, formerly of B.F. Goodrich Company, friends chairman; and Cheever Tyler, partner, Wiggan & Dana, corporate and foundation chairman.

Women's Basketball Team Wins National Championship for UNH

by Missy Ilg

The University of New Haven's women's basketball team became the university's first squad to capture a national title Saturday, March 21 when the Chargers scored a 77-75 win over three-time national champs, the California Poly Pomona Broncos at the NCAA finals at the Springfield Civic Center.

The Division II national championship was just one of many

Doctoral Symposium

How to Succeed in the World's Markets Discussed by International Panelists

Succeeding in world markets may depend upon knowledge of when or when not to speak a foreign language or the deceptively simple protocol of how to shake hands. According to speakers at the "International Communications in Business" seminar at the University of New Haven in March, pre-departure training in the customs of a foreign country is essential for successful, as well as harmonious international business dealings.

Presented by the doctoral students at UNH, the symposium included views and comments from representatives of the Middle East, Europe, Asia and the Indian subcontinent.

Sondra Sen, an intercultural consultant of Mountain Lakes, New Jersey, and director of the Asian Indians in America Ethnic Heritage Studies Project, explained that a good product and a good price are not the only essentials when dealing with other countries. "The John Wayne style of doing business may very well be offensive and counterproductive. You have to be sensitive to varying cultures to compete effectively in today's world markets," she said, suggesting the importance of dressing formally and presenting business cards in Japan, for example, or accepting tea in Indian, Japan or the People's Republic of China instead of getting right to business.

"Periods of silence are a sign of seriousness in Japan," she said, commenting on the American tendency for the quick response that is taken as "insincere" by many foreigners. "Avoid the hard sell," she urged the audience, "and be careful how you interpret what's not said. In Japan or Brazil, for example, the nod can mean 'I hear you' or a polite 'no'."

Ayten Heykal, director of research for the U.S. Arab Chamber of Commerce in New York, told the audience that now is an ideal time for medium- and small-sized firms to do business with the Arab states. "But," she added, "you have to do your homework, build credibility with facts and figures. Medium- and small-sized businesses have more flexibility and can move faster than large firms," she said, "but you must know the do's and don'ts, the customs and the taboos."

"Of utmost importance is to understand that each of the 21 Arab countries is different. They share a language and a religion but vastly different backgrounds, customs, geography and they are all oil-producing," Ms. Heykal explained, adding the suggestion that American companies go

Students' Visit to Capital Hill Focuses On Political Leadership

Students in a University of New Haven graduate management class, "Leadership in Organizations", ended their winter trimester with a trip to the Connecticut State Capitol, adding political leadership information to their information on business and industry leadership roles.

Tagging the visit a "working case study", Sullivan and his class discussed political leadership roles, the organization of a caucus and how bills are made into law—from point A to fruition.

"The trip added a new dimension to the class," Sullivan recounts. Sullivan, an adjunct faculty member, was elected to the Connecticut Senate in November from the 12th Senatorial District. "Leadership styles are important components of management education," Sullivan added. "Political leadership is an especially important facet in today's world. The external environment—the political arena—is a part of the dynamics of leadership, dovetailing with the necessity for managers to be exceptionally good politicians within their own management areas," Sullivan concluded. ■ to Arab lands as part of a trade mission or chamber delegation rather than trying to make the trip on their own. "The trade mission people understand the customs and can get you started on the right foot."

"Avoid speaking Russian in Central European countries and don't discuss Communist ideology," warned Kaszimierz Dadak, a professor at Fordham University who came to the United States from Poland in 1982. "And don't try to speak one of the Slavic tongues; they are too hard and you will make a fool of yourself."

"The economic situation and the industrial development varies with each of the Central European countries—Rumania, Yugoslavia, Poland, Hungary, Bulgaria, East Germany," Dadak continued. "Take the advice of your embassies and consuls and understand that deal sweeteners or kickbacks are part of the price of doing business outside the United States."

"Shaking hands is important in Europe," Dennis McDonald, executive vice president of Arrowhead Enterprises, a division of the Switzerland-based firm, Cerberus AG, commented.

"There are rules that are not to be broken. You shake hands with the highest ranking official first; it's not informal like in this country," he said. "Don't make small talk about your personal life, but do emphasize your military involvement, especially in Switzerland. And in Europe," he added, "it helps to give a greeting in the native tongue."

Describing his native land as once a major colonial power, but now a tiny country, Dr. Adriano Seabra-Veiga of Waterbury, a thoracic surgeon and Portuguese consul to the state of Connecticut, talked primarily about the price benefits of doing business with Portugal and Portugal as a retirement mecca.

All five speakers at the symposium emphasized that respecting the customs and mores of the foreign land is ultimately more important than dropping the price of the exported goods.

The symposium was moderated by Dr. William Bockley, director of the UNH doctoral program, with greetings from Edward Lisi, a doctoral student, and Dr. M.L. McLaughlin, dean of the School of Business. ■

Buckman Gift

"The rapid growth of technology in recent years has created enormous needs for expansion and renovation in almost all areas of activity in our engineering school," Dr. Lambrakis said. "The generosity and thoughtfulness of our loyal friends and supporters represent our greatest reassurance that these needs will be met," he concluded.

Mrs. Buckman said her gift is "a tribute to the University of New Haven for its outstanding engineering programs and its record of service and cooperation with area business and industry."

In addition to serving on the UNH Board of Governors for nine years, beginning in 1975, Mrs. Buckman has been active in numerous educational and cultural programs in the New Haven area including service on the board of directors of the New Haven Scholarship Fund.

Dr. Phillip Kaplan, UNH president, calls Mrs. Buckman's $500,000 gift "major support" for the Fund for Engineering. "Mrs. Buckman and our many other benefactors and supporters are among the university's most valued and valuable assets. It is their commitment, concern and financial support that help ensure the university's continued success as a dynamic educational institution as well as an important community resource."

The Buckman gift will be used for improvements to the School of Engineering building, laboratory facilities and to help meet the objectives of the Fund for Engineering. ■

Co-op Gives Marketing Senior Life After College Insights

Paul Richardson of Saint Croix, the Virgin Islands, a University of New Haven marketing major, credits his cooperative education experience as a major reason for his selection from among 5,000 entries to attend this spring's Career Track '87, a career conference held in New York City.

Richardson was chosen to attend the conference on the basis of his resumé, prepared through the assistance of a co-op workshop, and his summer 1986 UNH co-op position with Field Publications in Middletown, Conn.

"My summer co-op experience was a real 'eye opener,'" Richardson said. "It gave me the opportunity to apply classroom theory to a real world experience. At first I thought I was about to give up a summer, but before I knew it, the summer was over and I realized I gained a taste for life after college. The experience not only provided financial assistance, but also made me acutely aware of just how close I was to graduation and it forced me to think about my level of preparation. That awareness is reflected in my grades this year," Richardson commented.

While at Field, Richardson completed three major projects in the area of direct mail and telemarketing—the updating of home marketing and new campaigns for both direct mail and telemarketing, the processing of list rentals to create more productive mailing and the placement of orders with brokers.

Field is best known for its educational journal, The Weekly Reader, and the Muppet Babies series.

Career Track '87 provided the UNH senior with an opportunity to submit his credentials to numerous major employers gathered at the conference to interview college seniors with work experience in their chosen fields. "Although I'm an entry-level candidate, my co-op experience gave me an edge to utilize my marketing and communications skills in the competitive corporate environment," Richardson happily recounted.

Richardson has applied for authorization to receive his bachelor of science degree in marketing at this June 7th's commencement exercises. ■

Rabianski, English and assistant provost; Robert Rainish, chairman of accounting/finance; Charles Vigue, biology chairman; and Ronald Wentworth, industrial engineering and computer science.

David Maxwell, chairman of the public management department, has been named an associate professor; and Robert Dugan, psychology, has been granted tenure. ■

Dr. Uebelacker Named "Friend of Education"

Dr. James Uebelacker, UNH associate provost, has been named to receive a Connecticut Education Association Friend of Education Award.

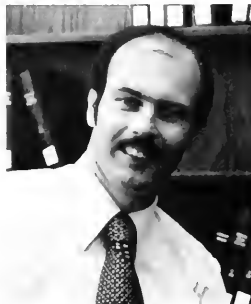

One of only four in the state to be honored this year, Uebelacker was nominated by the Milford Education Association to receive the award. He is president of the Milford PTA Council and a member of the PTA State Board of Directors. He was recently named to a 15-member state commission to study the feasibility of a teacher standards board. Last June, he was one of 10 recipients of the Good Samaritan Award in Milford, Woodbridge, Orange, West Haven and New Haven.

Previous recipients of the award have included Gov. William O'Neill, U.S. Sen. Lowell Weicker and Superior Court Justice Arline Mooney, retired.

In addition to Uebelacker, this year's award will go to the Enfield Junior Women's Club; the Community for Parish Hill, Regional District 11; and former Connecticut Rep. Michael Helfgot of West Willington.

The awards were scheduled to be presented at a dinner at the Civic Center in Hartford on May 15. More than 500 delegates from local CEA affiliates throughout the state were expected to attend the ceremony and annual CEA meeting. The Friend of Education Award is the CEAs most prestigious citation.

Uebelacker joined the UNH faculty in 1978 and was named assistant provost in 1979. He has held his current position since 1982 and is responsible for the developmental studies program, the computer institute and scheduling. A professor of mathematics, he is a frequent lecturer for the Associated Teachers of Mathematics in Connecticut and other mathematics groups. He participated in a panel discussion at Stratford High School in March where his topic was "Education Is Not Just Teaching Anymore." ■

UNH Promotions Announced

Eleven faculty members at the University of New Haven have received promotions, effective September 1, 1987.

Promoted to full professor are: James Downey, acting dean, School of Hotel, Restaurant & Tourism Administration; Lynn Ellis, management; Richard Farmer, public management; Robert Glen, chairman of the history department; Michael Morris, psychology; Nancyanne

STUDENT SUMMER EMPLOYMENT OPPORTUNITIES

The University of New Haven Foundation has employment opportunities in the Groton/New London area under its student services contract with the Navy. Students enrolled in the University of New Haven, Southeastern Connecticut or main campus degree programs are eligible to work under this contract, provided they complete 24 credits per year. Students may be enrolled on either a full- or part-time basis. This work experience offers the performance of tasks of a professional nature related to the student's appropriate degree program. U.S. citizenship is required. For further details, interested applicants should contact Beverly Raff of the University of New Haven Foundation office in Groton at (203) 449-8500.

Yale Physicist to Give '87 Commencement Address

Dr. D. Allan Bromley, Henry Ford II Professor of Physics and Director of the Wright Nuclear Structure Laboratory at Yale University, will be the commencement speaker and one of four honorary degree recipients at the June 7 ceremonies.

Dr. Bromley will receive an honorary doctor of humane letters degree in recognition of his distinguished career in science and education.

Three honorary doctor of law degrees will be presented to: Dr. Ernest L. Boyer, president of the Carnegie Foundation for the Advancement of Teaching, in recognition of his distinguished contribution to higher education and for being an eloquent spokesman for higher education in America; Dr. Herbert Stein of the University of Virginia and the American Enterprise Institute, for his distinguished career as an economist and as a public servant; and Robert M. Gordon of Woodbridge, for his notable career as a modern industrialist and his long-standing dedicated service to the University of New Haven as a member of its Board of Governors.

Some 600 undergraduate and graduate degree candidates will receive their diplomas during the commencement exercises. ■

AROUND CAMPUS

The Board of Governors

James Q. Bensen was one of three recipients of the Princeton University Alumni Council award for service to Princeton. A ceramic Siberian tiger and special citation were presented to him on the occasion of his 50th class reunion at Princeton in June of 1986.

Citing his more than 45 years of service to Princeton, Bensen was praised for serving 16 years as class secretary and for outstanding performance in his continuing position as a member of the national annual giving committee in the capacity of annual giving chairman for Rhode Island and Connecticut.

Bensen is an honorary UNH alumnus and has been a member of the UNH Board of Governors since 1964. He is a past chairman of the Development Committee, the Investment Committee and the Insurance Committee. Together with Larry C. Parker, Bensen also developed the first UNH Phonathon, an event for which he continues to volunteer.

A retired executive at Bethlehem Steel, Bensen is currently the president of the National Art Museum of Sport, which is housed at UNH. He is a resident of Madison, Conn.

Kirk F. Blanchard has been named president of Wyatt, Inc. of New Haven. He is the third generation of his family to head the company, the largest independently owned oil company in New England.

Blanchard joined the company in 1977 and served as executive vice president and treasurer of the firm prior to his promotion. He succeeds his father, Dudley F. Blanchard, named honorary chairman of the firm.

In addition to his service on the UNH Board of Governors, Blanchard is a director of the New Haven Kiwanis Club and the New Haven Boys Club and a member of the New Haven Executive Forum and Greater New Haven Chamber of Commerce. ■

School of Arts & Sciences

Dr. James Dull's book, The Politics of American Foreign Policy, published by Prentice-Hall, has been reviewed in Contemporary Sociology by H. Bradford Westerfield of Yale University. Citing Dull for succeeding "... in the difficult task of compressing into three hundred short pages a remarkably detailed up-to-date survey of international relations theories and the process and content of American foreign policy ..." Westerfield predicts further editions of the book.

Dr. Bertram Ross is adding to his impressive list of publications with Methods of Summation, a text to be published in 1988 by Descartes Press. A portion of the book was written during Ross' 1984

Summer Faculty Fellowship and completed during his recent leave. He is also preparing two research papers for publication.

Dr. Judith Gordon has been named to the Board of the Leila Rosen Young Feminist Social Action Fund of the Sociologists for Women in Society. The fund will support a special project on pay equity. ■

School of Business

The Department of Public Management played host to some 85 police chiefs and deputies from south central Connecticut area towns at a United Illuminating Company-sponsored management training seminar in April.

Entitled "Police Executive Management Issues of 1987," the seminar was planned as part of UI's corporate social responsibility program. Panel discussions included "Selection Procedures Performance Evaluation Techniques," moderated by UNH's L. Craig Parker, Jr., and "Managing Police Agencies with Limited Resources," moderated by Albert Harary, vice president of management services at UI. Al Terzi, WTNH-TV anchorman, discussed "Police and the Media" during the luncheon session.

Panelists included: Craig Zendzian, president of Test Preparation Services; Dr. Robert Meier of Professional Resource Associates; Charles Williams, director of the Prevention/Intervention Division of the Connecticut Alcohol and Drug Commission; Duane Phillips, director of organization and development at UI; Dr. Kenneth Dean, vice president of Stone and Webster Management Consultants; and Robert Wasserman, fellow, John F. Kennedy School of Government, Harvard University.

Charles Wankel, assistant professor of management, has been appointed management area book proposal reviewer for the respected British publisher, Basil Blackwell of Oxford. Wankel's book, Management, has recently been published in Indonesian by the Jakarta publisher, Intermedia. Wankel also was among a small group of academics to be invited to attend a special program providing an overview of IBM's high-tech in-house education facility, the IBM Manufacturing Technology Institute in Thornwood, New York.

"Business in the '90s and Beyond: A New Game with New Rules" was discussed at a UNH seminar March 27. Presented by the UNH School of Business, the seminar was held at Dods Hall. Principal speakers included Philip J. Durosko, vice president for consumer affairs and product reliability for Armtex, and John Ghisoni, director of marketing and communications, Westchester Division, United States Postal Service. Consecutive sessions on business careers focussed on communication, accounting, finance, economics, management, marketing, international business, management information systems, criminal justice and public administration.

Dr. Robert E. Gaensslen, director of the Forensic Science Department at the University of New Haven, was recently named the 1987 recipient of the Red Cross Sterling Award. The award was presented to Dr. Gaensslen during a reception and cast party following a benefit performance of A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum, at the Shubert Center for the Performing Arts.

The Sterling Award is presented by the South Central Connecticut Chapter (SCCC) of the American Red Cross to recognize exemplary service to the local chapter by leadership volunteers. The master of ceremonies for the event was UNH's provost, Dr. Alexis N. Sommers, who is also chairman of the SCCC.

Gaensslen has received numerous research awards and grants, served as a consultant for scientific publications and law enforcement agencies, and is widely published in technical journals of forensic science.

An active volunteer for the local Red Cross since 1981, Gaensslen has served as acting chapter chairman, administrative vice chairman, chairman of the blood service and public relations committees, voting delegate to the American Red Cross national convention, and, most recently, has served as chapter chairman. ■

School of Engineering

A team of seven juniors and seniors from Amity Regional High School scored an academic victory for their school at the 1987 TEAMS competition at the University of New Haven in March.

The Amity team came in highest of 12 teams from throughout the state of Connecticut in the Tests of Engineering Aptitude, Mathematics, Science and Technology (TEAMS), sponsored by the Junior Engineering Technical Society (JETS).

The 135 students competed individually, as well as in teams, in chemistry, engineering graphics, biology, mathematics, computer fundamentals, physics and English.

The Masuk High School, Monroe, came in second and Bunnell High School in Stratford ranked third. Other teams represented Choate Rosemary Hall, Wallingford; Cromwell High School; East Haven High School; Granby Memorial School; Jonathan Law High School, Milford; Stratford High School; the Morgan School, Clinton; and Torrington High School.

The competition at UNH was supported by grants from Avco Lycoming Textron of Stratford and Combustion Engineering of Stamford.

"Wood: A Modern Structural Material," a seminar on the use of lumber and lumber products in construction, was held at the University of New Haven April 23.

The seminar was presented by the Southern Forest Products Association, American Plywood Association, American Institute of Timber Construction and the Southern Pressure Treaters Association.

The program included slide-illustrated lectures covering basic design considerations and examples of the use of lumber, plywood and pressure treated wood. It was planned to provide practicing architects, contractors, engineers and upper-level architectural and engineering students with practical information on the use of wood as an engineering material. ■

School of Hotel, Restaurant & Tourism Administration

The School of Hotel, Restaurant & Tourism Administration has honored three distinguished members of the hospitality industry this year at dinners in the Epicurean Room.

Edward R. Book, chairman of the board and chief executive officer of Hershey Entertainment & Resort Company, received the 1987 Distinguished Hospitality Executive award.

Carl Candels, executive vice president and public relations counsel for the Connecticut Hotel-Motel Association, was named 1987 Distinguished Connecticut Hospitality Executive.

Named this year's Distinguished Hospitality Alumnus was Joseph Amendola, BS'73, senior vice president of the Culinary Institute of America.

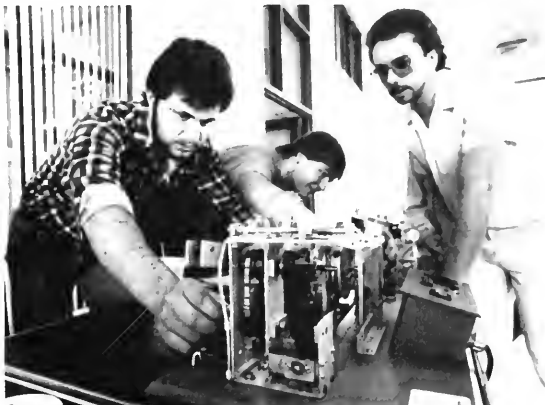

Book, who joined the Hershey Company in 1969, is the recipient of numerous honors for his humanitarian contributions as well as his many accomplishments in the hospitality industry. He was named to the Hall of Leaders by the Travel Industry Association of America in 1986 and that same year received the Pennsylvania State University Distinguished Alumnus Award. He received the John Baum Humanitarian Award in 1985 and was named a Distinguished Pennsylvanian in 1982 as well as a Certified Hotel Administrator. During the bicentennial year, he was named Pennsylvania Travel Man of the Year.

Previous Distinguished Hospitality Executive awardees included: Edward Drew, BS'82, general manager, Quinpiack Club, New Haven, 1983; Richard Kelleher, senior vice president, Beacon Hospitality Corp., Boston, Mass., 1984; Anthony Rebello, BS'71, senior vice president, Seven-Up Company, St. Louis, Mo., 1985; and Chef Louis Szathmary, head chef and owner of The Bakery Restaurant, Chicago, Ill., 1986.

Candels, president of Carl Candels & Associates, a Hartford public relations firm founded in 1964, has served the Connecticut Hotel-Motel Association as executive vice president since April 1963. During his years at CHMA, the association membership has increased from about 85 properties to more than 200 and from 7,000 rooms to more than 17,000 with a corresponding increase in tourism promotion throughout the state.

Candels has served as a member of the Governor's Vacation Travel Council since 1976 and was chairman of the state's Tourism Council in 1983. He is also currently vice chairman of the Farmington Valley/West Hartford Visitors' Bureau. In his 30 years as a public relations counsel, he has specialized in hotel-motel, health agency, organizational, business and fund-raising accounts.

Recipient of numerous awards for his work with health and youth associations as well as hotel-motel organizations, Candels is a vocal and active proponent of Connecticut's unique tourist attractions and the state's potential for even greater impact on the hospitality industry.

TEXTILE PROJECT: Mechanical engineers compete with design and construction models.

CHOCOLATE FOR HERSHEY: Hotel/Restaurant students design in chocolate for Hershey's CEO, Edward R. Book, 1987 UNH School of Hotel, Restaurant & Tourism Administration Distinguished Hospitality Executive. He receives his award from Dr. James Downey.

Author, educator and recipient of numerous awards for his hospitality achievements, Amendola is one of the University of New Haven's earliest hotel/restaurant graduates. He received his bachelor of science degree from UNH in 1973, shortly after the UNH School of Business inaugurated its department of hotel/restaurant management.

Amendola's career, however, started years before his UNH baccalaureate. He was apprenticed at the age of 9 to Lucibello's Italian Pastry Shop in his hometown of New Haven. During World War II, he signed on with the armed forces and worked at the Plaza Athenée Hotel in Paris, refining his skills in preparing baked goods, pastries and other confections.

Amendola joined the Culinary Institute in 1948 when it was still the New Haven Restaurant Institute in Connecticut and served as baking instructor, supervisor, assistant dean, dean of students, vice president of operations, vice president of campus services and acting president. He is currently the Institute's development officer as well as senior vice president.

During his years at the institute, he helped develop the baking program, has written texts for students and was closely involved in facilities design for the Institute's kitchens when it moved to Hyde Park in 1972.

Amendola's credits as an author include: The Baker's Manual; Ice Carving Made Easy; Instructor's and Student's Guide to Professional Baking; Understanding Baking; and the pastry section of The Professional Chef.

Amendola's many awards include the Chef Herman Breithaupt Award and a special presentation from the Kyoto Cooking School in Japan for his contributions to the food industry. ■

Student Services

A Health Fair, held at the Student Center the week of March 9, was judged a success by the organizers and by the hundreds of students and other members of the UNH community who participated in the week-long event.

Sponsored by health services, the dietetics and institutional management department and athletics, the Health Fair identified 10 previously unknown elevated blood pressure levels among the 220 screenings performed and one elevated blood sugar level among the three dozen people tested.

Some 100 members of the community received a nutritional diet analysis while 50 body fat analyses were given out. The tally for the breath CO<sub>2</sub> analysis reached 35 and the breath analysis totaled 75; 40 participated in the stress relaxation-bio-feedback test.

The Health Fair also included first aid demonstrations, aerobics and informational materials from area health organizations and the University of New Haven Psychology Department.

Donations to the university's WNHU radiothon netted $23,000. The week-long campaign, only the third in the station's 15-year history, began April 6 and continued through April 12. Funds will be used for new equipment including mike cables, a transmitter and conversion to stereo equipment.

The latest Arbitron figures show 50,000 listeners regularly tune in to WNHU's music, news, sports broadcasts and community affairs programs.

The radiothon was manned by student and faculty volunteers. According to Rose Majestic, general manager, pledges this year came from a record number of businesses as well as university staff, faculty and students and from listeners in five counties in Connecticut and New York.

Robert Caruso, dean of admission services, and Will Travelstead, assistant dean of student life at Southern Illinois University, are co-editors of a forthcoming sourcebook tentatively entitled Enhancing Student Judicial Systems in Higher Education. The book, produced by Jossey-Bass, Inc., as part of its New Directions for Student Services series, is scheduled for publication in September. It is designed to provide a sampling of current thinking on judicial affairs issues from administrators involved in this area. Caruso also is the author of an individual chapter entitled "Organizing for Judicial Affairs Work."

Caruso presented a workshop this spring for Stonehill College's staff development series for student affairs staff members. The workshop, "C.A.S. Standards and Guidelines for Student Services/Development Programs," centered on the use of C.A.S. (Council for the Advancement of Standards) standards in establishing goals and objectives within student affairs and on the future applications of the standards in regional accreditation reviews. ■

CHECKING THE COMPUTER: Students gather around computer equipment to get the latest facts on nutritional analysis during Health Fair Week.

SUBSTANCE ABUSE PROGRAMMING: Larry Pasquale, special teams coach for the New York Jets, was one of this year's guest speakers in the on-going UNH substance abuse awareness and prevention program.

INTERNATIONAL FLAVOR: Guests at the annual International Banquet enjoyed the exhibition and then sat down for a sumptuous feast.

Chargers Close Out 23-9 Season by Reaching NCAA Tourney

The University of New Haven men's basketball team closed out a memorable 1986-87 season by receiving a bid to the New England Division II Regionals. While the Chargers pulled up short in the first round, Coach Stu Grove and his team can look back on a successful 23-9 season.

In the Regionals, the first-ever NCAA post-season appearance for the Chargers under Coach Grove, UNH faced off against NECC nemesis, New Hampshire College on the Penmen's home court. As in the previous three contests, the teams were evenly matched and the game wasn't decided until the waning minutes. In this case, though, the outcome wasn't determined until the buzzer sounded. With the game tied at 80, the Chargers missed the 1-1 at the line. The ball was rebounded by the Penmen and passed off to Carlos Baez at half-court. One step later, Baez pulled up for a 25-footer, which was nothing but net. For the second straight time, the NHC guard beat the Chargers at the buzzer. While the season was technically over, the Chargers played the Hawks of St. Anselm College the next day in the consolation game. UNH dropped the game, 94-88 to close out the season.

Despite the disappointment of seeing their bid for the NCAA Final Four end so abruptly, the anticipated rush of post-season honors for several players helped to ease the sting. So did the fact that the team's 23 wins matched the second most wins in the team's history. Only the 1965-66 club, led by UNH Hall of Fame member Gary Libertore, won more games (29).

Leading the way for the Chargers was junior guard, Herb Watkins (Paterson, NJ) who was named to the NABC's District I (New England) First Team, a pre-selection step for All-America. He was also named to the ECAC Division II North First Team as well as the NECC First Team. At the New England Regional, Watkins also garnered First Team All-Tournament honors. On the season, he reached the 1,000 points plateau, which makes him only the 16th player to do so. He was the team leader in points per game (20.5), blocked shots (73) and field goal percentage (.556). He also finished second on the squad in rebounding (7.9 rbg) and in thefts (63). After three seasons, Watkins stands #8 on the All-Time scoring list, with 1,327 points.

Also receiving post-season honors was Ken Coleman, who was named to the NECC Second Team. Coleman, a native of Jersey City, NJ finished the season as the leader in assists (6.0 apg) and in thefts (79). He was also fourth on the team in scoring (11.1 ppg).

Coach Grove also has the added luxury of all five starters returning next season. Junior forward Bill Jeffress (Long Branch, NJ) will be back at the forward position along with center Dave Centore (Syracuse, NY) and guard Hency Watt (Bayonne, NJ).

Jeffress finished the season with a 15.8 ppg average and was the top man under the boards with 8.3 bounds per game. He finished the season with 71 blocks and will undoubtedly hit the 1,000 point mark mid-season next year. Watt was a key down the stretch for the Chargers, as he wasn't afraid to drive in for the shot. He finished with 12.8 ppg and 48 thefts. He will be one of the keys to the team's success over the next two seasons. Also looking to make an impact as a starter is sophomore Dave Centore. The 6-7 sophomore was a walk-on a year ago and earned himself a starting job with his tough defense and work under the boards. He averaged 7 points a game for the Chargers.

The Chargers will lose co-captain Mike Costigan, Mark Drew and John Reynolds to graduation. Costigan (Keyport, NJ) has been an important part of the Charger's success off the bench. This season was by far his best, as he averaged 4.5 points a game and 3.3 boards. Costigan could always be found crashing the boards and stepping back for his soft-shot jumper. Drew (Bordentown, NJ), a strong outside shooter, thrived on the three-pointer as 78 of his 94 points came from behind the line. Last and certainly not least is John Reynolds (Gales Ferry, CT). The 6-7 forward played a strong role off the bench as the enforcer and was always able to come up with the rebound when it was needed. All three players contributed as much with their spirit and determination as with their skill.

HOT GUARD: Herb Watkins who demonstrated his agile ability to score against New Hampshire College, led the team in post-season honors.

Also making a contribution to the team were Jim Munson, Ben Bowers, and Frank Alois. Munson (Dover, NH) could be the forward of the future for Grove and his staff as he showed plenty of skill and poise in post-season play. Bowers (Boston, MA) too, could be looked to next season under the boards as he averaged 2.6 pg with limited playing time. Alois (Ellwood City PA) no doubt benefited from his first season of college ball.

So ends the 1986-87 men's basketball season at the university of New Haven. The season was indeed a memorable one and there are a few things that will always be remembered about the year: The #1 ranking in New England (2/3), and the three weeks of national ranking - 1/21 #19; 1/28 #13 and 2/4 #11. The incredible 28-9 record and of course, the first-ever NCAA post-season tournament bid. Not a bad season for the 1986-87 men's basketball team to look back on. Not bad at all. ■

UNH Heads To Regionals

The UNH baseball team got off to a fast start by winning its first eight games. The fast start, blended with a strong pitching staff, timely hitting and depth off the bench, set the Chargers up for their 12th consecutive trip to the Northeast Regionals.

The Chargers entered the season with a veteran line-up boasting some of the top offensive and defensive players in the region, but it was the pitching that held the Blue and Gold together until the bats came alive. Leading the way was sophomore right-hander, Mike Pekock using a slider/sinker mix to stymie the opposing batters. The Waterbury, CT native, who enters the Regionals with a 8-1 record and 1.40 ERA, kept the opposition so off balance, that he didn't allow an earned run for more than 19 innings. Right behind Pekock was senior sidearm slinger, Mart Hatje (Wallingford, CT). As he has done in the previous three seasons, Hatje came on late in the season, picking up four wins in a six-game span. The talented right-hander also hurled three shutouts to close out the season. Also posting winning records were sophomore Steve DiBartolomeo (Trumbull, CT), and junior,

Dave McAuliffe (Monroe, CT). Vieira also called upon the veteran arms of senior Jim Listro (Woodbridge, CT) who finished the regular season at 2-2, 3.22 ERA and junior, Bob Lombardo (Stamford, CT 0-0, 2.70), who saw limited action due to a pre-season injury. Perhaps the most impressive statistic of all on the six-man crew is the 2.27 staff ERA. Left-hander Phil Dillon, (West Haven, CT) was called up late in the season to fortify the bull-pen.

Controlling the pitchers behind the plate was the team's leading hitter and captain, Frank Forucci (Wolcott, CT), who enters the post season hitting at a .440 clip. The senior was also second on the team with 35 RBI. Right behind was junior second baseman, Ken Coleman (Jersey City, NJ). Top run producers among the starting nine were first baseman, Les Wallin (Danbury, CT) who smashed 9 homers enroute to a .358 average and team leading 46 RBI. Junior rightfielder, Paul Sabrowski contributed 32 RBI. Sabrowski hails from Stamford, CT. Wallin, who struggled early in the season at the plate, came on strong during the final two weeks to raise his average .051 points. ■

Women Champs

"firsts" for the women's team. The incredible 29-2 record marks the most ever for a women's basketball team (formerly 18) and equals the most victories in Charger basketball history. The last time 29 wins were posted was in 1965-66 when the men, led by Gary Liberatore, finished 29-2. The women also set the stage for future teams, with a single-season record for most consecutive wins (28).

Another first for the Chargers also became a first for the New England region and the NECC as UNH became the first school to capture a women's Division II title.

The University honored the coaches and the team March 24. In a campus-wide celebration, students, staff and faculty watched the game on a wide-screen television in the North Campus gymnasium. During halftime, the women were honored by several area and university dignitaries, including the Mayor of West Haven, the Honorable Azelio Guerra.

"I doubt that there are many teams out there who enjoyed winning a title like we did," coach Jan Rossman said. "We went up to Springfield wanting to win not only for ourselves, but for the school and the people who had supported us all season."

"If someone had told me back on October 15 (first day of practice) that we would be the national champs, I probably would have just shrugged my shoulders and smiled," said Rossman. "I mean, who really thinks about the 'final four' when you still have your first game to think about?"

Although the championship was a complete team effort, several players were singled out for post-season awards. Leading the pack was sophomore Joy Jeter (Beaver Falls, PA) who became the first women's basketball player to receive First Team All-America status. The 6-foot center averaged 117.3 per game for the Chargers while also leading the team in the rebound department with 10.4 rebounds per game. In addition, Jeter was also named to the NECC and ECAC First Teams as well as being voted Player of the Year for ECAC

Division II-North. Along the road to the Final Four, Jeter was named the Most Outstanding Player in the Quarterfinals against Hampton University and Most Outstanding Player of the Final Four Championships. In Springfield, Jeter tallied 51 points and 24 rebounds. She is currently #3 on the All-Time scoring list and #2 in rebounding.

Fellow Beaver Falls High School teammate Charlene Taylor garnered several honors this season. The 5'2" guard averaged 14.6 ppg and 5.9 assists per game. The sophomore was voted NECC Player of the Year and was named to the ECAC First-Team. Taylor joined Jeter as a member of the prestigious All-Tournament Team in Springfield, a team chosen by the attending media.

Also finishing in double figures for the year was tri-captain, Sonja Beamon (Hamden, CT), who finished the season at 12.5 ppg and was second on the team in rebounds (12.5). She graduates this spring as the All-Time rebounding leader (901) and #2 on the All-Time scoring list (1208).

Also graduating are the other tri-captains: forward Terri Stahl (Greene, NY) and guard Carolyn Bell (Hartford, CT). Stahl finished the season fourth on the team in scoring (9.9 ppg). The season was her best as she more than doubled her point production of the previous three seasons. She was named the Most Outstanding Player in the Regionals against Stonehill with a team-high 20 points. The power forward finished her career with a 5.5 ppg and a 3.8 rbg average. Bell started all 31 games for the Blue and Gold this season and was a big factor in the team's win over Cal. Poly Pomona shooting 75% from the field en route to a 13-point game. She finished her career with a 7.8 ppg and 3.8 rbg mark.

"There is no doubt that we will miss Sonja, Carolyn and Terri next season," Rossman said. "They have been a big part of the team's success the last four seasons not just with their skill, but with their leadership. They are going to be tough to replace both on the court and off. Next year? We'll take it one game at a time." ■

Awards Night Honors All Facets of University

Arthur P. Sheehan and John J. Caprio received this year's "Outstanding Staff Member" and "Outstanding Service Employee" awards.

The presentations were made during the annual Awards Night at Dodds Hall on April 15. Some 175 students and staff were honored during the ceremony for meritorious service, outstanding academic achievement, community participation and social responsibility.

Sheehan, BS'81, a sergeant with the UNH security police, has been on the force for 17 years and is the recipient of numerous awards and commendations from the Department of the Treasury, Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco & Firearms; the Federal Bureau of Investigation; and the West Haven Department of Police Services, as well as from the University of New Haven and the UNH Day Student Government. In January he was the West Haven Lodge of Elks Law Enforcement Night honoree.

Caprio has been with the university's maintenance department for nearly 26 years, and, in addition to his plaque and merit award, received special recognition from the School of Business for his service.

Sheehan and Caprio received their awards from Dr. Phillip Kaplan, UNH president, during the annual awards ceremony, held this year at Dodds Hall.

Among the academic awards presented were:

Lambda Delta Honor Society; Shawn Know, Elaine Rihn and Thomas Teixeira; Best Research Paper Prize, Awadhesh Kumar Ramal; Philosophy Award, John P. Gendreau; McGough psychology awards, Sandra Cannon, Victor T. Incerti, John A. Mastrianni; Rollin G. Osterweis political science award, Thomas W. Teixeira; and Co-op Student of the Year, Anthony LoRusso.

School of Business: communications, Joseph Diresta, Christine Kincaid and Sam Sorrentino; criminal justice, Timothy Juergens; management, Sandra Barber and Victoria Willis; marketing, Marianne Haydusky; management information systems, Shawn Know; accounting, Beverly W. Grant, Rosalie M. Killian, Lorraine Levinsky and Nellie Ziwak; finance, John Beaurty and Janet B. Teller; and the Connecticut Society of Certified Public Accountants awards, Paul Duroske, John Sylvestre and Nellie Ziwak.

School of Business Dean's List Honor Society members named were: management/marketing, Kathleen Nixon; public management, Patricia Morrissey; accountancy, Marjorie M. Nelson; communication, Mark Smith; and economics, Michelangelo Falbo and Allen Love.

School of Engineering awards went to: civil engineering, James A. Bevilacqua and Tommy K. Mattson; industrial engineering and computer science, Elaine Rihn, Alan Brooks, Lala Dutta and Fred Hobbs.

School of Hotel, Restaurant & Tourism Administration awardees included: Phyllis Jenks, Therese Brabec, Anita Damo, Earl Davis, Paula Einig and Leroy Sluder.

School of Professional Studies awards went to: fire science, Robert Talloni, Winston Brown, Michael Yacovino and Jeff Halayko. ■

Fund Leadership

Francis A. Schneiders

Robert B. Dodds, retired chairman of Safety Electrical Equipment Corporation and one of the university's most generous benefactors, is serving as honorary chairman.

The Board of Advisers for the Fund for Engineering includes: Harold R. Logan, retired vice chairman of W.R. Grace Corporation; Frederick J. Mancheski, chairman, president and chief executive officer of Echlin, Inc.; Walter H. Monteith, Jr., president and chief executive officer of Southern New England Telecommunications; Frank R. O'Keefe, Jr., chairman, president and chief executive officer of Armtek Corporation; and Fritz G. Tovar, vice president and general manager of the Electric Boat Division, General Dynamics Corporation. ■

PROFESSIONAL ADVICE: Fund for Engineering campaign leadership volunteers receive counsel and guidance from George Archibald Brakeley III, executive vice president, secretary and director of Brakeley, John Price Jones, Inc., a major development consultant whose successful campaigns are recognized nationwide.

16 Named to "Who's Who"

Sixteen University of New Haven students have been named to the "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges." The 16 represent diverse academic interests and include international students as well as students from the east coast.

Named this year were:

Ann Marie C. Agnellino Anastasio, East Haven, financial accounting; Carolyn M.L. Bell, Hartford, communication; Kathleen Black, Dover, N.J., hotel and restaurant management; Kathleen Ann Brady, West Haven, financial accounting; Jose Bscheider, Republic of Panama, electrical engineering; Susan N. Cortina, Trumbull, biology; Paul J. Duroske, Madison, financial accounting; and Cathy J. Etris, York, Pa., travel and tourism administration.

Also: Lorraine A. Fuller, Plantation, Fla., management information systems; Jack Goldstein, West Haven, accounting; Yvonne Burgess Hanna, New Haven, music and sound recording; Harold J. Lyons, Jr., Brookhaven, N.Y., hotel management; Ivo Philbert, St. John, Virgin Islands, hotel and restaurant management; Ellen T. Regan, Berlin, forensic science; Kateri J. Whalen, Cheshire, mathematics; and Michele Zint, West Haven, criminal justice. ■

Blue Cross/Blue Shield Scholarships Announced

Two UNH management information systems students have been named to receive Blue Cross & Blue Shield Joseph F. Duplinsky Scholarships.

Both juniors, the recipients are Kimberly A. Schmidt of Wallingford and Donna Onofrio of West Haven. Schmidt was also last year's recipient, and spent last summer working at Blue Cross & Blue Shield of Connecticut.

The scholarships cover half tuition and are awarded on a basis of academic merit and financial need. Each winner also has an opportunity to intern with one of the firm's computer departments during summer vacation.

Duplinsky, retired chairman of Blue Cross & Blue Shield, is a 1941 UNH alumnus and the recipient of the university's first Distinguished Alumnus Award in 1984. ■

Grad Heads Coney Island Sports Arena Complex

by Katherine E. Cowles

What do you think of when you hear "Coney Island"? If you answered a slightly rundown waterfront amusement park hoping to be given a new lease on life, you'd be right.

If you're one of the many friends and associates of Robert G. Zeig, BA '73, you'd also say that Zeig is just the man who can make that hope a reality.

Zeig has just been named executive director of the Brooklyn Sports Foundation, a group formed to expedite the construction of a state-of-the-art multi-purpose sports arena and stadium complex on Coney Island.

In a study conducted by Pratt Institute for the state of New York, the need for a facility of this type was determined, and funding has just been approved to build a model, analyze the economic impact and study the traffic flow. The Pratt study also recommended the proposed site. Of the 2.3 million residents in the borough of Brooklyn, 54,000 are students attending the many local colleges, none of which has a field house or arena.

Both a 15,000-seat indoor arena, and a 17,000-seat outdoor stadium are planned. In addition to hosting college athletic programs, the $58.6 million complex will provide an entertainment facility for a variety of other events.

Zeig was chosen for the position of executive director from 250 finalists after a national search. The announcement was made by Dr. Robert Hess, chairman of the Board of the Brooklyn Sports Foundation and president of Brooklyn College, who said, "... in Mr. Zeig we feel that we have a director with the background needed to help make the sports complex a reality."

Zeig credits UNH with providing him with that background. "UNH gave me the chance to succeed and I'm grateful that UNH created ... an atmosphere where each individual can find his own interest and pursue that interest." (1973 Chariot, Robert G. Zeig, editor).

After graduating from Roosevelt High School in Yonkers, N.Y., Zeig found at the then New Haven College the opportunity to pursue his studies in journalism. The flexibility in scheduling allowed him to take all his classes on only two days a week, which eased his life as a commuter. Twice a week, he'd catch a 6:05 am train from Mt. Vernon, arrive in New Haven at 7:55 and somehow make it to his class at 8:05. He soon found that he was becoming so involved in extracurricular activities that he was commuting every day and often spending the night.

As editor of the student News he served on the communications board, charged with the restructuring of the student council and writing the new constitution for the Day Student Government.

Bob is credited with creating the club lacrosse program and bringing it to varsity status in less than three years. He still returns each year to strap on the pads and mask and play goalie for the alumni team.

In 1973, his senior year, he served on the search committee which selected Dr. Phillip Kaplan as its choice for the new president of UNH to succeed President Marvin Peterson. He was the editor of the 1973 Chariot, was on the Dean's List and received the coveted Alumni Award at his June graduation. (He's also credited with organizing the first campus "streak," using the News office for the lacrosse office and taking out several windows with a lacrosse ball.)

From UNH, Bob went to Fairfield for a Masters in Communications, then together with contacts he made at UNH,

'85 Graduate Merges Music & Diplomacy

Nabil Mora, a Venezuelan native of Arabic descent who came to the U.S. to further his education, graduated from UNH in January, 1985, with an M.B.A. prepared to pursue a career in diplomacy.

However, his love of and talent for Venezuelan and Arabic music set him apart from other UNH graduate students. He found that whenever he performed, people gathered to listen and praise his work. After winning the student-run Talent Contest in the spring of 1984, he received offers to perform in public numerous places around the state. This moved him to try and make a name for himself in Venezuela.

Mora bases his success on his style. Singing in Arabic, he accompanies himself on the "cuatro," a native Venezuelan instrument similar to a guitar, but smaller and with four strings. He made his Venezuelan debut at the Ateneo in September of 1986.

Since then he has given more concerts and appeared on TV talk shows in Caracas. He says he always mentions that he attended UNH.

Currently, Mora is working part-time for the Syrian Embassy in Caracas, and is producing an album of his unique first love, the music of his heritage. ■

Annual Alumni Dinner Slated

Members of the Alumni Board were, at press time, planning this year's Alumni Council dinner meeting scheduled for Thursday evening, May 21.

A reception began at 6:00 pm in the National Art Museum of Sport located in Dodds Hall. Alumni had the opportunity to mix with fellow council members and prospective new members while viewing the NAMOS collection of sports art. Housed at the university since 1979, the collection is generally credited to be America's largest and most diversified assemblage of its genre.

The dinner began at 7 pm in the Student Center Lounge. The annual meeting following dinner included recognition of outstanding alumni volunteers for 1986-87 and a presentation by guest speaker, Cheryl Lison, UNH Director of Cooperative Education. Ms. Lison discussed some of the exciting plans for development of the newly-expanded UNH Co-op program since the recent award of a $374,000.00 grant from the federal government. ■ owned and operated several minor league baseball teams, including the West Haven Yankees, and was a principal in New England Stadium Concessions, which held the concession contract at The Yale Bowl.

For the last three years, he has been working for George Steinbrenner of the New York Yankees. As advertising manager for publications, he was responsible for bringing in a 500 percent increase in advertising, publishing the Yankee Yearbook and starting cable network talk shows.

Zeig admits working for the Yankees was "challenging," but he clearly thrives on hard work. He's excited by the prospect of bringing together the many groups and individuals involved in this new project and working towards the completion of the sports complex. Bob has stayed in close touch with many of his UNH friends and is quick to point out how important those contacts and his UNH experiences have been in his new position.

He says that "if everything goes smoothly, if everything falls into place, the ribbon cutting for the New Brooklyn sports facility could take place in the fall of 1989."

His friends would lay odds on that ribbon cutting taking place right on schedule. ■

Phonathon

The 81 callers who manned the phones during the 1986-1987 Alumni Phonathon were honored April 7 at an award ceremony held in the Student Center Lounge.

Alumni Association president Orest (Tom) Dubno noted in his welcoming remarks that the phonathon is the heart of the many alumni fund raising efforts which include mail campaigns, special gift solicitations, capital fund drives, fund raising events and programs, memorial and remembrance gifts and planned giving.

Phonathon Chairman Robert Barrington, Jr., BS'71, MPA'77, reported that the phoning portion has resulted in nearly $98,000.00 in pledges toward annual giving, a tribute to the combined efforts of alumni, students, faculty, staff and friends.

First, second, and third place awards were presented to the three callers whose overall totals were the highest in hours worked, pledges received and dollars raised. Top phoning honors went to Katie Hickey, '88, a junior from Meriden, Conn. Second place went to Chairman Barrington and third place went to Carolyn Bell, '87, a senior from Hartford, Conn.

Special recognition also went to top alumni phoner John Duffy, MBA'73, and top faculty phoner Warren Smith for their efforts. Each phoned a total of 4 nights during the course of the phonathon.

Bob Barrington was presented with a token of appreciation for his dedication and commitment as chairman. In addition to serving as an inspiration to the other callers, Bob also made a videotape showing several calling sessions, including the April 7 celebration.

Callers who phoned during the fall session were listed in the Winter 1986, (Volume IX, Number 2) issue of INSIGHT. Phoners who worked during the February 17 - March 12 session included:

YWCA Honors Elizabeth G. Curren

Elizabeth Cooley Curren, AS'68, Society Editor for the New Haven Register, was one of seven New Haven area women selected for honors by the YWCA of Greater New Haven at its 12th Annual Women in Leadership Luncheon, May 8 at the Park Plaza Hotel.

She was recognized for her outstanding achievements in the field of journalism and her ability to spread the "good news" for non-profit agencies.

Curren was the first woman president of UNH's Alumni Association and the first woman to head the Connecticut Kidney Foundation. Among the many honors garnered during her career is the "Volunteer Service Award" from the Kidney Foundation of Connecticut for her work in developing nationwide assistance in fighting kidney disease.

Curren's lively "Here 'n There" column in the Register features and supports area philanthropic events.

Featured speaker at the luncheon was Norma Foreman Glasgow, Connecticut's commissioner of higher education, the first woman to hold the post in the state's history. ■
